

My reflection on the course:

Reflecting on the whole course is a bit difficult since the 3 challenge was a bit far from each other, but overall I liked it. Why am I saying this? As in the previous courses, we started with a really easy assignment and we finished with a bit more difficult one. I enjoyed all 3 assignments the first one was really fun for me, the second one I didn't like that much and the 3rd one was interesting and really useful.

Unfortunately, I only attended the classes in the begging since I'm learning JS for a couple years now and it got really boring for me even tho the teachers tried to keep it interesting. I really like how the teachers are teaching and try to make it interesting and interactive. Also, I really appreciate that we can ask them most of the time and we get a quick response.

If this would be my first experience with JS then I would have definitely stick with the lessons.

Overall I would say it was fun as always, in the teaching method I wouldn't change a thing, it is as perfect as it is. Although what I disliked, that even I who learned JS for a while one week is a really short time next tho all the other assignments. Second that it is impossible for me to focus in the summer especially in a warmer area, because I had to leave the Netherlands at end of May.

I had some uncomfortable moments because of what I mentioned above but other than that my overall experience is still very positive and programming will be always in my favorites.

I learned new API and where can I use them, so I will be able to use this information in the future. There is always something new to learn!
